My personal skills and qualities:

I have a very calm and understanding nature, which has always been beneficial in stressful situations. I also value the importance of hard work and perseverance, especially in an education setting. I am a good communicator, and work well with others, which has resulted in me being given more senior roles in previous positions. I also feel that having a good sense of humour and a tolerant nature can be extremely beneficial, especially when working with young people who can be blunt to say the least! I feel this creates a positive atmosphere in my lessons. Empathy is something I feel is extremely important in a school environment, both with students and other members of staff. I believe my ability to empathise has allowed me to build strong, trusting and professional relationships in the schools I have worked in. I have always been in employment whilst in education showing my ability to balance and manage workloads.

My other interests and hobbies:

I love football (and sport in general), and am a season ticket holder at the Sunderland Stadium of Light, further proof of my ability to cope with stressful situations! I love to travel both around the UK and Europe. I also have a passion for music and enjoy going to concerts. I enjoy reading, mostly autobiographies of sportsmen. I firmly believe that as a PE teacher you are not only responsible for ensuring lifelong participation in sport, but also for highlighting the importance of leading an active and healthy lifestyle. I do this by eating healthily, and participating in football and golf and by attending the gym. I am confident that I am ready to begin my career in teaching, not just because of everything I have stated above, but because of my passion for sport and drive to help young people.
