My personal skills and qualities:

Competitive swimming has helped open the door to both teaching and coaching; I discovered the confidence and resilience to help others both in and out of the water. I have an outgoing and lively personality and strong leadership and communication skills which help build strong relationships with those around me, including pupils, colleagues and peers. I am a strong believer that sport and physical activity can provide individuals with positive and encouraging opportunities and I am incredibly keen to facilitate this within the school environment. I am a confident, approachable, organised, hardworking, fun and patient individual and believe that my personal attributes are ideally suited to the teaching environment and enable me to successfully engage with those students who are reluctant to participate in sporting activities.

My other interests and hobbies:

I love being a swimming coach in my spare time and supporting a range of athletes of different abilities; this has included volunteering during the summer holidays as a lifeguard for The Newman Trust (a SEND respite holiday), allowing the children to experience an engaging and stimulating environment. I enjoy being physically active and also enjoy the outdoors, especially walking along the beach. I have been incredibly fortunate to have travelled, which I have enjoyed enormously. I have visited many areas of the world including Europe, America and Asia. I would love to broaden my life experiences and fulfil my dreams of jumping out of an aeroplane and shark cage diving. In the right environment. I am a competitive individual which can be witnessed by my family and friends during game nights.
