My personal skills and qualities:

I have a real passion for sport and physical education which I have developed throughout my academic and sporting career. My sporting career has surpassed just playing; it has developed into officiating, coaching and mentoring. I believe these experiences have played a critical role in my development of many transferable skills from coaching to teaching such as communication, teamwork, adaptability and resilience. One of my key skills is being resilient; I have shown this through my life by working hard to achieve my goals and persevering when I have encountered any barriers. One of my main strengths from my first placement was being receptive to feedback and making a conscious effort to act and implement changes to improve my practice.

My other interests and hobbies:

As an all-round sports enthusiast, I spend a lot of my spare time watching or taking part in physical activity. Football has always been my passion and I currently represent Felling Magpies FC as a coach, player and serve as a committee member holding the role of Head of Development. Away from football, I enjoy cycling and walking, exploring new places in particular along the coastline. I have a passion for music, particularly indie rock bands, and enjoy going to festivals and gigs.
