My personal skills and qualities:

I have always been enthusiastic about sport and physical activity from a young age and from my experience working in clubs, schools, community sporting projects and my degree in sports psychology I have observed the positive impact that sporting participation can have on wellbeing, self-esteem and overall confidence. My experience of taking part in, and coaching a range of sports has given me a broad subject knowledge of a variety of different sporting activities. Through my studies I have developed a secure understanding of not only the theoretical aspects of PE, but also the psychology of participation at all levels. My personal experience of elite level sport as well as my experience working at club coaching and grass roots level sport allows me to understand the motivation of both more able students and those for whom sport may not come easily. I have the enthusiasm to support all young people in reaching their goals.

I pride myself on attention to detail and always work hard to achieve my personal targets in all aspects of my life. I am able to build positive relationships with people and I work well as part of a team. My organisational skills are excellent and I regularly plan events for the clubs and organisations I am involved in. I am flexible and adaptable and can react calmly in unexpected circumstances if required. I am currently one of the course representatives for the North East Partnership SCITT.

My other interests and hobbies:

In my leisure time I am very active and spend much of my time within a sporting environment, taking part in outdoor activities such as cycling, walking, kayaking or going to the gym. I currently play canoe polo for Kayak Northumbria and a team in Leeds at both regional and national events. I also enjoy following football and Formula 1 and like to attend live motoring events when possible. I am currently the welfare officer at Kayak Northumbria which involves attending meetings regarding the club and its day to day running.
